1. The power plant is located in the Verkhniye Kotly suburb of Moscow, about 2,000 meters south of the outer freight ring. The construction of the power plant started in the summer of 1948. Four ferro-concrete buildings, measuring about 100 x 50 meters, were under construction. Two of these buildings were already 15 meters high, the other two 10 meters high. The division into storios could be observed. There was also a storage dump, about 200 x 50 meters, surrounded by a double barbed wire fence.
2. The plant was allegedly scheduled to be equipped with four steam turbines to be delivered by a Leningrad Plant. The power plant is allegedly designed to supply only industrial installations. *
